Career As A Radio Jockey

A radio jockey (RJ) is a person who hosts radio shows cherry-picking the music to be played and topics to be discussed in chats while socializing with audiences through interaction via phone call, SMS, email, and other such means. Every radio jockey has his/her own distinctive style of communication. To make a quick impression on listeners and stay connected with them, the RJ needs to have a good voice and good communication skills, besides knowing how to be gracious, witty, and entertaining.

Courses and Eligibility

The most essential prerequisite for a radio jockey is a good voice with the ability to modulate as per the context. Apart from that, a RJ should have a clear diction, accurate pronunciation, fluency in the language, and a flair for witty impromptu responses. A thorough knowledge of music will be a big advantage if used in conjunction with an awareness of what the listeners want. Staying abreast of the happenings in and around the city is crucial for an RJ. In order to project individuality, skills in mimicry, local dialects, and comedy will come in handy for an RJ to carry on hosting shows successfully.

Career Prospects

Radio jockeys can find work in organizations such as AIR (All India Radio), Radio Mirchi, Radio City, Radio One, FM Rainbow, Radio Dhamaal, Radio Indigo, Red FM, and other independent radio stations. Candidates are generally selected through auditions. An RJ with a standard voice can do voice-overs for television and radio advertisements. They can also lend their voices to audio magazines and documentaries. RJs can also anchor or compeer TV shows or live shows or events. Job opportunities for radio jockeys have increased in recent years owing to the emergence of private companies.

Remuneration

The beginners in the initial stage can earn between Rs. 20,000 to Rs. 35,000 per month. After 1-year experience, earn you between Rs 40,000 to 50,000 per month.
